Build a School for a Dollar Photos

As promised, Jackie took some time to go through the latest drawings and letters sent along with donations to the Build a School for a Dollar project. Jackie learned about each and every one of the letters and drawings you see in these photos. He was quite excited to know that people were still doing special projects to raise money for the project and although he commented that there weren't as many drawings as there used to be, he was encouraged that there were a lot more this month than there were last month. Here's a photo of Jackie with the latest drawings and letters.
